A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

I'M OFTEN ASKED WHAT I ENJOY MOST about life here at The Disney Channel and at The Walt Disney Company. That's not a hard question to answer: it's the people I meet and work with. One group of very special people here particularly fascinates—and entertains—me: the Disney animators. A Disney animator is an artist, an actor, and a storyteller rolled up into one amazing bundle of talent. And because I've actually met some of the people who created these incredible animated films, it's particularly thrilling to watch our Disney Animation Celebration. I enjoy the variety of the festival and the chance to see great old masterworks—Pinocchio and Dumbo—as well as more recent films such as The Rescuers and The Rescuers Down Under.

Coming this spring! Don't miss the world television premiere of Aladdin.

So I'm delighted to announce the first of three special additions to our Disney Animation Celebration. Coming this spring, The Magical World of Disney will present the world television premiere of Aladdin. You'll take a magic carpet ride to Agrabah as our enterprising hero woos the Princess Jasmine while thwarting the plans of the evil Jafar, thanks to the help of the most resourceful and riotous genie of all time. What wonderful additions to the gallery of Disney animated characters!

There are two more surprises in store for our Disney Animation Celebration—surprises we'll unveil in the months ahead. There is other exciting news as well: beginning in February, Kodak will be joining our Disney Channel family in presenting The Magical World of Disney. The relationship between Kodak and The Walt Disney Company is a long and special one that goes back to the days of Disneyland and to Walt Disney's pioneering television series. It's a relationship that involves the many Disney Channel subscribers who have visited the Kodak Journey into Imagination Pavilion at Walt Disney World Resort.

Now that you've heard the latest about family entertainment on Sunday night, it's time to turn to music. Beginning February 19, Sunday night at 9:00 p.m. means music on The Disney Channel every week. We're following The Magical World of Disney with the finest in contemporary musical entertainment. World premiere specials feature such artists as Elton John, Aretha Franklin, Kenny Rogers, and more. In February and March you won't want to miss programs starring David Bowie, Celine Dion—plus an encore presentation of our Emmy Award-winning special, Irish Music and America...A Musical Migration. Narrated by Emmylou Harris, the show features Bono of U2 as well as the Clancy Brothers, Hothouse Flowers, and Elvis Costello.

So remember: Sunday night means great music on The Disney Channel.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Disneyland Park

INDIANA JONES' GREATEST ADVENTURE

INDIANA JONES, the intrepid explorer in the film trilogy created by George Lucas, is the inspiration for a runaway thrill ride that opens in Disneyland in March.

The Indiana Jones Adventure comes to life as an expedition through the Temple of the Forbidden Eye, hidden deep in the jungles of India. Built in tribute to the deity Mara, the temple was rediscovered in 1935 by Indiana Jones and his team of explorers. According to lore, Mara could "look into your very soul" and then grant the "pure of heart" one of three magical gifts. Legend also warns of a "terrible fate" awaiting those who gaze upon the deity.

Visitors to the temple must follow a safe path marked out by Jones and his team. But warning signs indicate that some booby traps may remain. Once in the temple's interior, guests will be asked to avoid staring into the eyes of Mara—and to keep a lookout for the missing Indiana Jones.

For those who dare to look into the eyes of Mara, the journey takes a different route. They might encounter clouds of smoke, fire, bubbling lava pits, crumbling cave ceilings—even a close confrontation with the deity. Legend says that Mara vaporizes the unworthy with beams of fire.

Intrepid explorers will discover a new and horrifying surprise around every bend of this subterranean world, where escape, just like in the movies, is only temporary as they traverse a shaky suspension bridge or face being crushed by a gigantic rolling ball. And this journey is set apart by the fact that no guest ever experiences the same ride twice.

"George Lucas and Disney share the same vision of innovation and excellence," says Michael D. Eisner, Disney's chairman and executive officer. "Each time we have embarked on an adventure together, we have created a special experience for our guests. The Indiana Jones Adventure is that next cliff-hanging adventure."

THE MANY LIVES OF ELFEGO BACA

In 1958, Walt Disney created several miniseries on heroes of the Old West for his television show on ABC. One of the heroes was Elfego Baca. Ten Elfego Baca shows were presented over the next two years. Baca had been a gunman in the Old West, but he changed his ways, becoming sheriff of Socorro, New Mexico, and then a lawyer. Playing Elfego Baca was Robert Loggia. The producer needed a rugged, handsome, and exciting actor, and discovered him on a Playhouse 90 television program. Loggia continued his career as a distinguished leading man; in recent years he has done other work for the Disney Studios, including providing the voice of the villainous Sykes in Oliver and Company.

Your best way to lose weight fast!

Adding upper-body exercise to your walk helps you burn more calories in each workout — 53% more than motorized treadmills. You can burn an average of 850 calories and up to 1,000 calories per hour! This not only helps you lose weight quickly, it raises your metabolism so you continue to burn calories at a fast rate, even when you're not exercising. Combine regular WalkFit workouts with a sensible diet, and you, too, will discover the secret to fast, easy weight loss!

Get a superior total-body workout!

NordicTrack's WalkFit™ exerciser works both your upper and lower body for a total-body workout. It combines a treadmill for lower-body exercise with moveable arm poles for upper-body exercise. The sturdy arm poles offer positive resistance on both the push and the pull to strengthen and tone your arms, chest and back.

And WalkFit is nonmotorized so you get all the benefits of a workout, not a machine's motor. In fact, research shows you can improve your cardiovascular fitness more than 50% greater than with an ordinary motorized treadmill.

Safer and easier to use than motorized treadmills!

No special coordination is required to use WalkFit. Just hop on and start walking! It's safer and easier to use than motorized treadmills because WalkFit starts and stops when you do. You'll walk against adjustable resistance on a specially designed, non-jarring treadmill deck. And the fully adjustable arm poles let you vary the resistance on the upper-body exerciser. Or you can tighten them to use as stationary handlebars.

And a WalkFit workout is easy on your body, because the treadmill is designed with a version of the same flywheel as the legendary NordicTrack® ski exerciser. This unique system makes the WalkFit exceptionally smooth and easy to use. You won't experience any undue stress on your knees, hips or back.

Waiting For Spring

Mac 'N' Cheese, page 14

February and March are in-between months. The excitement of the holidays has faded while the joys of Spring have just begun to blossom. That's not to say there isn't fun to be had—handcrafting lacy Valentines around the kitchen table, staging a neighborhood St. Patrick's Day party, or having a home-video-making soiree. Our article on parties offers lots of ideas on how to throw a successful bash, whatever your theme.

This is a good time of year to consider new ways of reaching out to faraway family and friends. In this issue, you'll find some exciting high-tech innovations for connecting with those special people in your life, as well as such time-tested methods as letter writing and sending creative cards.

Help children learn the power of the written word with this Letter Writer Book and Stationery Set from Reader's Digest Kids ($24.95). It includes a 64-page book on letter writing that features tips on how to be heard and get things done as well as stationery, envelopes, postcards, an address book, rubber stamps, an ink pad, and other supplies.

It's also a good time—before April's tax bite—to consider the challenges of maximizing your family's financial situation to ensure a bright future. Today, experts say, parents have more to plan for than just their kids' college education. Find out what you should be doing.

In the kitchen, capitalize on cold and blustery weather to indulge in the comfort food of the 90's: homemade macaroni and cheese. We've included a great recipe with three variations, and also another spur-of-the-moment dinner idea: tips for a taco party for the kids and their friends.

However you spend your almost Spring-time, have fun!

FARAWAY FRIENDSHIPS

Never before in American history have people moved so frequently or so far away.

According to Jon Mellor, a spokesperson for AT&T, the average U.S. citizen will change residences 11 times in a lifetime and is more likely to move out of state than across town.

While moving a lot may have benefits, it makes keeping in touch with friends and families a challenge. But new technology offers solutions for those who want to stay in touch. For example, subscribers to on-line services such as Prodigy, CompuServe, or America Online can use electronic mail to keep in touch with friends and family. E-mail arrives in minutes and it is usually free to send.

Some families make regular audiotapes or home videos and mail them back and forth. This means grandparents can see a toddler's first steps, hear the piece performed at the piano recital, or witness a game-winning home run.

Many card shops now have create-a-card computers that offer easy-to-use touch screens and voice directions to guide users through a simple, personalized card-crafting process. These systems especially appeal to children and teens, according to card company experts. Some firms now provide card-making services online: subscribers can send cards electronically or download them for mailing.

including his baby shampoo.

As hard as it may be to admit, your toddler isn't a baby anymore. That's why there's Pert Plus for Kids. It can do more for his hair than baby shampoo alone, because it combines tear-free shampoo with a detangling conditioner. So, as your child grows out of practically everything, don't forget the one thing he's growing into.

Pert Plus for Kids.

Eat Your Crayons

Three students at Purdue University conceived of a new use for hydrogenated soybean oil: non-toxic, washable, petroleum-free, biodegradable crayons. While not yet on the market, their invention may herald a new wave in toy design—earth-friendly and edible art supplies.

Fast Food Frenzy

Feel guilty about relying too heavily or too often on fast food? You're not alone. According to Bob Sandelman, of Sandelman & Associates, a marketing research and consulting firm in Brea, California, about 96% of people living in metropolitan areas go to fast-food or pizza places at least once a month—and at least one-third frequent these establishments 12 times a month. Sandelman predicts more fast food places featuring computer ordering, and he thinks more people will want to take food home rather than eat there. He also foresees a growing emphasis on value—making sure the price is right for families.

often people are moving, are expanding their range of services to facilitate phone calls. AT&T, for example, is introducing a new number with a 500 area code that people can use for life as they move. And the companies offer reward systems allowing long-distance phone customers to build up points that can be applied to air travel, vacations, cash gifts, or other services.

Beyond the new technology, experts say old-fashioned letter-writing has staged a comeback. People find that the personal touch means more in an increasingly technology-driven world, and today stationery stores feature an array of papers, pens, and artistic cards. Rubber stamps, embossing powder, and ink can create homemade, personalized cards and letters.

Whether it's E-mail, a home video, a FAX, a phone call, or a hand-written letter, reaching out to friends and family has its benefits. Sharon Bollini, a mother of three who moved to Potomac, Maryland from California last year, sums it up: "When I get home and there's a letter in the mailbox or a message on our voice mail, it makes my day."

Entertaining
PARTY TIME

Parties will always be popular, and whether it's a birthday celebration or a special holiday bash for Valentine's Day or St. Patrick's Day, entertaining doesn't have to be an overwhelming or exhausting experience. Really.

According to a study of 2,026 households by Yankelovich Partners in New York, nine out of 10 children and more than one in four adults enjoy a birthday party every year. For adults, the parties often happen in the workplace, with 40% of employed Americans having their birthdays observed at work in some way.

All this partying is being made easier by the ready-to-go invitations, decorations, favors, and banners available in local stores, and through computer software, says Sara Eames, a spokesperson for American Greetings, in Cleveland, Ohio.

Eames says people increasingly favor themed parties, either capitalizing on a specific holiday or tying into such themes as sports, animals, or other appealing concepts. Party-givers are also turning to outdoor decorating to help create a happy and festive atmosphere.

Robin Charin, a party coordinator with R.T. Clown, Inc., in Studio City, California, says an increasing number of families throw parties that are centered around an activity, such as learning to line-dance to country western music or playing old-fashioned picnic games. Down-to-earth, fun alternatives seem to be the popular trend now, she says. Something as simple as decorating Valentine cookies or going on a neighborhood scavenger hunt for green things on St. Patrick's Day can easily win over a crowd of any age.

The Key to Success: Careful Planning. Here's What Party Experts Recommend.

- SELECT A THEME AND BUILD THE PARTY AROUND IT.
- INVOLVE THE WHOLE FAMILY IN PREPARING FOR THE PARTY.
- THINK SIMPLE. Balloons, streamers, and printed decorations may be all you need. A centerpiece can be nothing more than a stuffed animal with confetti for a zoo party, or a teddy bear holding a paper heart for a Valentine's party.

- FOR A CHILDREN'S PARTY, PLAN A FEW GAMES. For a Valentine's party, for example, guests can pin an arrow to a large heart hung on the wall, a la pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey, or guess the number of red and white jellybeans in a jar.
- FOR FUN FAVORS, SHOOT CANDID PHOTOS of each guest and glue them to cards or put them in inexpensive frames that match the theme of the party.

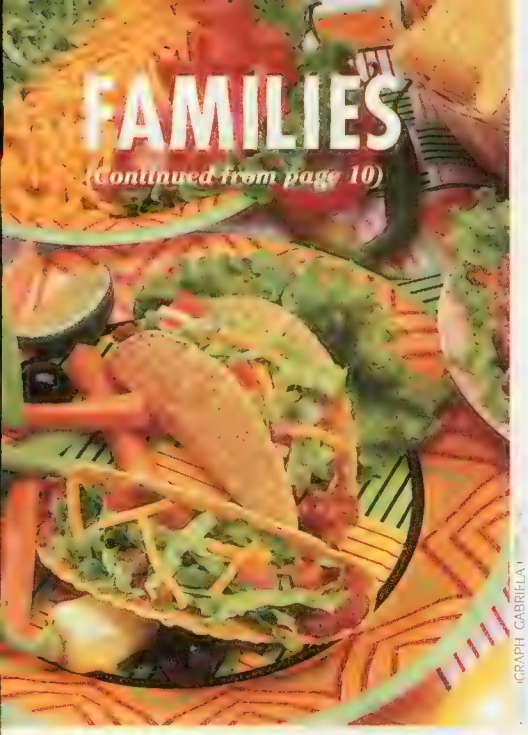
AS SIMPLE AS GREAT GETS



A TACO PARTY

In Mexico, "Ven a mi casa para tacos" is how you invite a friend for tacos. Why not extend the invitation to a dozen or more pals and turn it into a Fiesta de Tacos?

You can make the party even more fun by inviting one or two friends to help with the invitations, the shopping, the decorations, and the food preparation.

Brightly colored construction paper makes for inexpensive invitations. Write the information on one side, then fold in thirds, and seal the flap with stickers from a party store. Address the other side and mail, or pass them out at school.

Keep the menu simple so you don't have too much to do ahead of time or during the party. We suggest making a taco filling using ground turkey flavored with packaged taco seasoning mix. For 24 tacos buy 3 pounds of ground turkey and 3 (1.25-ounce) packages seasoning mix. Follow the directions on the package for ground beef but substitute the turkey sauteed in 1 tablespoon oil per pound.

You can offer both purchased crisp taco shells and small flour or corn tortillas as wrappers. Heat them in the oven and place them in baskets lined with brightly colored napkins. (The colors of the Mexican flag are red, white and green, but you might want to pick livelier colors—hot pink, bright orange, turquoise.)

Set out a tray of shredded lettuce, chopped tomato, and shredded cheese alongside bowls of avocado chunks and chopped red, white, and green onions. Offer two or three salsas, too, from mild to "muy caliente."

A FAMILY FINANCE PRIMER

Financial planners agree there's one simple piece of advice for young families: Save, save, save.

Parents may find it tough to find the funds and self-discipline needed for a savings plan, but experts say there is no other way to prepare for the future.

"The problem for most families is not in figuring out how to invest money," says Paul Meyer, a vice president and branch manager for Smith Barney, in Woodland Hills, California. "The difficulty is finding money to put away at the end of each month."

Meyer says the savings rate for baby boomers is lower than for any previous generation. Yet if boomers and post-boomers want to maintain their lifestyle into retirement, pay for their children's education, and perhaps pay for long-term care for their elders, they need to save at least 10 percent of their yearly income.

Jim Schwartz, a financial planner and past president of the Society of Independent Financial Advisors, in Englewood, Colorado, also stresses the need for families to save aggressively. Schwartz says the nature of work in America is changing. Soon, large numbers of people will be employed as independent contractors without the safety net of pensions or sick leave. Even retirement will come later, with most people working beyond age 65, perhaps without the Social Security benefits seniors receive today.

Parents in the previous generation saved for their children's college education; today parents have to plan for so much more.

These factors point to the need for a protection net. Schwartz recommends the equivalent of a year's salary, invested wisely. To develop such a sum, parents must learn a new frugality. "It means going from wanting more to learning to accept 'just enough,'" Schwartz says.

Meyer encourages families to put their savings in mutual funds or common stocks that historically earn the best returns. The trick is to make regular contributions to savings, maintaining a long-term point of view about the ultimate goal.

Growing Pains

Are growing pains a myth? Physicians say they're real, and not uncommon among children 3–12. The pains are generally felt in the legs, typically at the back of the knees, calves, and thighs. No one knows precisely what causes the discomfort, but experts do recommend giving children acetamino-phen (Tylenol) if needed. If pain persists, parents should consult their pediatrician.

MAC 'N' CHEESE

Nothing takes the chill out of a cold winter day like a melty-hot and bubbling-from-the-oven mac 'n' cheese. This heartwarming family favorite should be moist and creamy at its heart but a little chewy around the edges and on top (a child's favorite part).

Here we offer a recipe that's easy enough to put together at the end of a hard work day. Instead of chopping and sauteing onions and other flavor enhancers, the milk base for the sauce is infused with spices and with a quartered onion that you don't even have to peel if you feel too hurried, harried, or hungry.

And get the kids to help out. Depending on their ages, assign them to measure ingredients, watch the pot for bubbles, shred cheese (or unzip a convenient package of the pre-shredded stuff) and stir the sauce. They'll think it's fun, especially if you do—and if you let them choose which of the three variations on our recipe they prefer (probably pizza!). While the macaroni is baking, get family members to set the table and prepare a salad—all you need to make a complete meal that seems as warm and comforting as a hug from Grandma.

MOM'S MAC 'N' CHEESE

- 3 cups low-fat milk
- 1 onion, quartered
- 1 bay leaf
- 3 sprigs parsley
- 3/4 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon whole black peppercorns
- 6 tablespoons butter or margerine
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 5 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 7 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 8 ounces elbow macaroni, cooked and drained
- 4 cups cheddar cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste

In a saucepan over medium high heat combine milk, onion, bay leaf, parsley, oregano, and peppercorns. Heat just until bubbles begin to form around edges. Remove from heat and let stand 20 minutes.

Pour milk through strainer back into pan and reheat until bubbles form around edge.

Melt butter in a separate pan over medium heat. Stir in flour and cook, stirring constantly, for 2 minutes. Stir in hot milk and continue to cook, stirring, until thick, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in cheese until melted and smooth. (Return to low heat if necessary to melt cheese.) Season with salt and pepper. Fold in macaroni.

Pour into a buttered 2-quart casserole. Top with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until bubbly. Serves about 6.

PIZZA MAC: Substitue 1 garlic clove and 1 teaspoon basil for bay leaf. Substitute 3 cups mozzarella for cheddar. Place 1/2 of macaroni mixture in bottom of casserole. Spoon 1/2 (14-ounce) jar prepared pizza sauce over macaroni. Top with remaining macaroni, then sauce. Sprinkle top with 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese. Arrange favorite pizza toppings such as pepperoni, olives, bell peppers, tomato slices and/or crumbled cooked Italian sausage over top. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup more of the grated Parmesan. Bake as directed.

DELI MAC: Omit oregano and add 2 tablespoons grainy mustard to milk mixture. Substitute Swiss cheese for cheddar. Layer 1/2 of macaroni mixture in bottom of casserole. Arrange layer of sliced corned beef, pastrami, knockwurst or salami over macaroni. Top with remaining macaroni, then cheese. Sprinkle with caraway seeds. Bake as directed.

VEGGIE MAC: Fold 1 (16-ounce) package mixed frozen vegetables of choice into macaroni mixture before turning into casserole. Bake as directed.

The Old Curiosity Shop

Dickens' Tragic Tale Comes To Life As An Original Disney Channel Miniseries

THE YEAR WAS 1840, and enthralled readers in England and America eagerly awaited the latest installment of a new novel by a popular young writer. The heroine of the tale: a starry-eyed innocent named Little Nell who had been forced to flee London for the English countryside with her ruined grandfather. Wherever Nell turned there lurked the shadow of the vicious Daniel Quilp, the moneylender who threatened her beloved grandfather with imprisonment for debt—or worse, in the asylum known as Bedlam. Such a heroine was too good for this sordid world—nor did Mr. Charles Dickens relent, capping his novel The Old Curiosity Shop with an ending that stunned his readers.

Dickens' reputation as the greatest novelist of his day had been secured: in such works as The Pickwick Papers, David Copperfield, and The Old Curiosity Shop he had proven himself a writer with a sharply dramatic—indeed, cinematic—flair. His eye for physical detail and his love of eccentricity allowed him to create a host of memorable characters—characters both good and bad, characters from respectable society and characters from the gutter.

Continues on next page

Counterclockwise from top left: Sally Walsh is Little Nell and Peter Ustinov is her grandfather, owner of an antique shop in London. But Nell's grandfather harbors a terrible secret that leads to his total ruin. When the moneylender Quilp (Tom Courtenay) threatens her grandfather with imprisonment, Nell and the old man flee London for the countryside.

In The Old Curiosity Shop Dickens created two immortal characters whose very opposition drives the tale: Daniel Quilp, who has been turned into a moral monster by his ruthless and relentless quest for money and position; and Little Nell, the young girl who is the quintessence of Victorian goodness, grace, and innocence.

Above and at left: One of the many characters that Nell and Grandfather meet on their flight about the countryside is Mrs. Jarley, the owner of a wax museum stocked with historical and notorious figures. Charles Dickens had a genius for creating memorable characters, and would often interupt his writing to act out their facial expressions and other mannerisms.

Everywhere Nell and her grandfather turn, there are informers working for Quilp, even at a country fair (above left). Meanwhile, a mystery man from America, The Single Gentleman (James Fox, above right) is also searching for Nell and her grandfather.

Dickens' narrative gifts have made him a favorite of filmmakers over the years, yet television has proved particularly hospitable to his work. From Bleak House to The Disney Channel's own Emmy-winning Great Expectations, the miniseries fully allows for the novelist's scope. The Old Curiosity Shop is no exception, bringing the early Victorian period to life with vibrant color and boasting a trio of brilliant performances from Sir Peter Ustinov, Sally Walsh, and Tom Courtenay.

As story, The Old Curiosity Shop is propelled by one of Dickens's favorite narrative devices: reversal of fortune. For Little Nell and her grandfather, that reversal is catastrophic—Little Nell's secure world vanishes when her improvident grandfather faces total ruin.

Many critics have pilloried Charles Dickens over what they saw as one of his chief failings as a novelist. Yet Dickens himself experienced just such a reversal, when his own childhood ended with his father's imprisonment for debt.

Debtor's prison was a paradox: one was imprisoned until the debt was retired; imprisoned, one lacked the means to earn money to pay off the debt. To meet the family's expenses while the senior Dickens languished in prison, Dickens' mother removed the boy from school and put him to work in a shoe-blacking factory.

At 12, the future novelist found himself pasting labels on bottles of shoe polish from dawn to dusk. Wages were puny, working conditions resembled slavery, and punishment for any perceived misdeed was harsh and immediate. "Good" children won the privilege of sleeping on the warm floor next to the machines they worked.

Dickens spent only a few months in that factory. But the man and his art were formed in a rat-infested warren perched on a rickety wharf above the Thames.

A description which does resemble Quilp's Wharf in The Old Curiosity Shop. Certainly Dickens's experience played a powerful part in shaping Little Nell—a heroic child suddenly held hostage by forces she cannot control. The resulting drama makes for a superb tale that has continued to move readers in the 150 years since its publication—and, as you'll discover beginning March 19, it's a tale that makes for four hours of dramatic and compelling television.

Aretha Franklin is more than a legend: for four decades she's been a force of nature—a profound influence shaping the very course of music

BY MR. BONZAI

The Queen of Soul

WHY IS ARETHA Franklin universally revered as "The Queen of Soul?" To be sure, as an artist she commands a unique blend of spirituality and sensuality, feminine power and grace. But as Aretha Franklin: Going Home demonstrates, Franklin has had an unparalleled impact on popular music—from gospel to R&B to rock. This world premiere Disney Channel special explores the life of Aretha Franklin from her gospel beginnings and her incredible rise to fame in the '60s to the present decade. Indeed, her most recent album, Aretha Franklin: Greatest Hits (1980-1994), is a tribute to her continuing creative force, containing four new songs, including "Honey."

Gloria Estefan, who in the special joins Bonnie Raitt and Aretha Franklin for a striking update of 1967's "You Make Me Feel (Like a Nautral Woman)," notes: "Aretha is not only the Queen of Soul for music listeners but also for the community of artists who love her and owe her so much." Bonnie Raitt adds that Aretha has had "a major effect on every woman singer who came after her."

Rod Stewart, the top-notch crooner of English soul, simply says that Aretha Franklin possesses "the best voice of the 20th century."

Clive Davis, president of Arista Records, Franklin's home since 1980, explains: "There is no such thing as an Aretha Franklin song, because every song that she does she finds new meaning in. It's a very natural genius that she has. There's no accident that she's the Queen of Soul."

Aretha Franklin was born in Memphis, Tennessee, the daughter of the Reverend C.L. Franklin. Shortly after her birth, the family moved to Detroit. It was there that Franklin began singing in the choir of her father's Baptist church. As childhood friend Smokey Robinson recalls, "Aretha has always been one of those multi-talented people. When she was four or five years old, she could play piano almost like she plays it now. She never took piano lessons—she's one of those gifted people."

Encouraged to record at the precocious age of 14, Aretha Franklin was spotted by the legendary producer John Hammond, who called her "the best natural singer since Billie Holiday." Signed to Columbia Records, Franklin first hit the Top 40 in 1961 with Al Jolson's "Rock-A-Bye Your Baby With a Dixie Melody," followed by a string of memorable tunes. In 1967, Franklin switched labels and signed with Atlantic Records.

It was at Atlantic that Franklin began working with producer Jerry Wexler and arranger Arif Mardin, blossoming with an intensity that would result in more million-selling singles than any other woman in the history of recorded sound.

In 1967 Franklin had five Top 10 hits alone, including the #1 "Respect," "Chain of Fools," and "Baby, I Love You." She was named R&B Singer of the Year at the Grammys. In 1972, Franklin returned to her gospel roots with a live album Amazing Grace—which garnered her her eighth Grammy Award.

In the '80s Franklin's career soared to new heights as she joined Clive Davis at Arista Records. A new chapter began with an album simply entitled Aretha. "United Together" showed Lady Soul at her rhythm and ballad best. In 1982, she released the hit "Jump to It," from the first of two smash albums with producer Luther Vandross. She followed in 1983 with "Get It Right."

In 1985, "Freeway of Love" soared up the charts (and marked the beginning of her series of hits with producer Narada Michael Walden), followed by "Jimmy Lee," a paean to a high school sweetheart. That same year Franklin recorded "Sisters Are Doing It for Themselves" with Annie Lennox of Eurhythmics.

"Who's Zoomin' Who" scored again for Aretha, and in 1987 her duet with George Michael, "I Knew You Were Waiting (For Me)" was the hit heard round the world. On that same album Franklin performed her own gutty version of "Jumpin' Jack Flash" with Keith Richards. "When the opportunity arises to work with Aretha," said Richards, "you drop everything and do it. Her voice is one of the great natural instruments...the way she uses it is so instinctive."

Franklin's incredible chemistry for harmonizing with a wide range of singers was demonstrated yet again in 1991 with "Ever Changing Times" from her What You See Is What You Sweat album. There she performed a duet with Michael Macdonald—a duet produced by Burt Bacharach and Carole Bayer Sager. The same album yielded up her version of "I Dreamed a Dream" from the musical Les Miserables. Two years later, Franklin electrified millions when she sang the song at President Clinton's inaugural.

"When the opportunity arises to work with Aretha," says Keith Richards, "you drop everything and do it."

The '90s have been remarkable years for Aretha Franklin, as she continues to work with some of the hottest producers around, including C+C Music Factory for a "Deeper Love," the hit song from the movie Sister Act 2: Back in the Habit.

In 1994, Aretha Franklin was honored with a Lifetime Achievement Award at the Grammy Awards—an award bestowed upon her for "bringing the passion of gospel into the secular realm with her incomparable, four-octave range and unparalleled confluence of heart and soul...The Queen of Soul's powerful, transcendental recordings will continue to inspire the greatest artists of generations to come." Franklin received yet another tribute that year, being honored at the Kennedy Center Awards.

Still a vital force in music, The Queen of Soul promises, "I'll never stop—there's always one more song. I've got a million songs to sing."

Mr. Bonzai is the editor at large for Mix magazine. His forays into the music world include breaking bread with the Beatles at Abbey Road.

Kids' lives are tough enough without making them eat regular granola bars.

Some granola bars taste about as good as the paper they're wrapped in. That's why your kids deserve KUDOS.® You see, KUDOS® are nutritious whole grain bars, with 10% of the US RDA of vitamins A, C and E. And 20% of the daily requirement of calcium. But with lots of delicious stuff like chocolate chunks, peanut butter, and fudge, KUDOS® also tastes great. Because, sure, you want them to eat right. But why make their lives harder than they already are?

WORLD PREMIERE

SUNDAY NIGHT SHOWCASE PRESENTS KENNY ROGERS: GOING HOME

WHEN I WAS REALLY YOUNG—AS YOUNG as four or five—I remember so well my father packing all the kids in the back of the pickup truck in Houston and driving to Apple Springs, Texas, where all of his brothers and sisters played some musical instrument or another," remembers Kenny Rogers. "Once they started playing they really became a cohesive unit, and that was something that stayed with me as a child...the impact that music had, not just on a single person but on a group of people." In the world premiere of Kenny Rogers: Going Home, one of pop music's great talents surveys a sterling career—a career ranging from the early '60s jazz of the Bobby Doyle Trio and the folk music of the New Christy Minstrels to the rock sounds of The First Edition and Rogers' smash country career. Among the show's highlights is a concert performance of classic ballads from Rogers' new album Timepiece. The songs in the special include "You Are So Beautiful," plus Rogers' signature hit "The Gambler." "I always said I was a country singer who had a lot of other musical influences."

JUST FOR KIDS

A GOLDILOCKS FOR THE '90s

WHAT REALLY HAPPENED when Goldilocks met up with the three bears? If you think you know the answer to that question, you're wrong, as this splendid new animated special reveals. Combining stop-action animation and traditional cel animation segments with a bright and witty musical score and a wacky and offbeat approach to classic fairy tales, Goldilocks and The Three Bears Sing Their Little Bitty Hearts Out is a fresh approach to an old chestnut. And we think this world premiere special will be a hit with adults as well as kids.

DISNEY ANIMATION CELEBRATION

A SPECIAL SEQUEL FOR ONE ANIMATOR

THE RESCUERS DOWN UNDER possesses a unique status in the history of Disney animation: it was the first sequel to an animated classic. That has special meaning for animator Glen Keane, for he worked on both the original film and the sequel. In fact, The Rescuers formed Keane's first assignment at Disney: drawing the character of the orphan girl Penny under the tutelage of supervising animator Ollie Johnston, one of the Studio's celebrated "Nine Old Men of Animation." (Ironically, The Rescuers was Johnston's last film for Disney, capping a career of 43 years.) Twelve years later, now a supervising animator himself, Keane created the noble eagle Marahute in The Rescuers Down Under. Today Keane's credits include Ariel from The Little Mermaid, Beast from Beauty and the Beast, and a hero named Aladdin, who makes a special appearance on our Disney Animation Celebration this spring.

COMEDY TONIGHT

MARTIN & LEWIS: THEIR GOLDEN AGE OF COMEDY

WHEN I FIRST SAW THE MATERIAL I relived the times," recalls Jerry Lewis of Martin & Lewis: Their Golden Age of Comedy, the critically acclaimed five-part series that traces the career of one of the greatest comedy duos of all time. Theirs was a partnership that rivaled the immortals: Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello—comics of genius who indeed served as unconscious influences on the work of Martin & Lewis. "It was just magic, absolute magic," Lewis says of the duo's golden days during the '50s on television and in film. "We were at the height of wild abandonment," Lewis explains. "Here were these two guys in love with one another and with one another's abilities. And it's all there in those specials."

DISNEY NIGHT TIME

THE FAIREST LADY OF THEM ALL

MY FAIR LADY MAY ONLYHAVE TURNED 30 in 1994, but the film's life was endangered: the original negative was literally disintegrating. Fortunately, this led to a complete restoration of the classic musical—the winner of eight Academy Awards. On Sunday and Monday, February 5 & 6, The Disney Channel is proud to present the world television premiere of this restored masterwork. To celebrate the event, Sunday Night Showcase will present The Making of My Fair Lady: More Loverly than Ever, which not only chronicles the film's restoration but also its creation—and it includes rare original footage of Audrey Hepburn singing the leading role. Following the special, we present My Fair Lady in letterbox format, which preserves the picture's original bigscreen dimensions. The next night on Best of Hollywood, it's My Fair Lady airing in our regular format (known as panned and scanned). Whether you're a cineast or just a fan of larger-than-life entertainment, join us in February for a celebration of My Fair Lady.

WORLD PREMIERE!

WE ARE THE WORLD: A 10TH ANNIVERSARY TRIBUTE

A DECADE AGO ROCK 'N' ROLL enjoyed its finest hour as the greatest recording artists of the era came together with USA for Africa, creating "We Are the World"—the song whose platinum sales aided famine relief in Ethiopia, where millions were dying. The performers included Diana Ross, Bob Dylan, Bonnie Raitt, Stevie Wonder, Bruce Springsteen, Aretha Franklin, Michael Jackson, and more—all coming together under the aegis of producer Quincy Jones. Ten years have passed since that historic moment, and this special marks an opportunity to look back at that eventful recording session and to follow USA for Africa's relief efforts over the decade. Narrated by Harry Belafonte, who conceived this monumental relief effort, We Are The World: A 10th Anniversary Tribute is a moving salute to those few whose efforts saved so many.

US PREMIERE!

A NEW SERIES EXPLORES NATURE BY DESIGN

THE FORM OF A RACE CAR is determined by its function—maximum possible speed in any situation. The resulting vehicle stands as a superb example of the builder's art. But imagine taking the standards of industrial design and applying them to life on Earth. The result—a brilliant, endlessly fascinating six-part series named Nature By Design. Created by award-winning filmmakers from the BBC, each episode of Nature By Design examines the relationship between human and natural design—and behavior. The four gaits of a horse, for example, correlate with the gears of a car. In industrial design, plastic and fiberglass are valued for their combination of strength and flexibility—but how do they compare with human skin or silk? Is fashion truly a unique human trait or the final, most sophisticated example of nature's resourcefulness in using image and color to ensure everything from protection to reproduction? Nature By Design takes a unique approach to these questions—and our relationship to the natural world.

Babe Ruth Is Honored On A Classic Collector's Tankard

The Babe's prized autograph appears on both the bat and this raised-relief baseball.

Shown smaller than actual size of 8¼" tall.

Babe Ruth's incredible "called shot" home run in the 1932 World Series was surely the most memorable moment in the unforgettable career of baseball's greatest hero.

And now that moment—and the Babe's historic career—are honored on the Babe Ruth Autograph Tankard, premier issue in The Legends of Baseball Signature Series.

Hand-crafted of stoneware, with extensive raised-relief detailing, this rugged tankard has a bat replica handle, with a glove thumbrest and embossed lid crafted of solid pewter.

Like a baseball card, you'll find a colorful portrait of the Bambino stroking his "called shot" homer on one side of the tankard...his career story on the other...his lifetime stats on the base. And the Babe's famous autograph appears on both the bat and ball.

This hand-numbered edition comes complete with Certificate of Authenticity and literature—an all-time great value at the issue price of $29.95. Send no money now—simply return the order form.

Greetings, Earthlings.

The 1995 Chevrolet Lumina Minivan.

One look and you can see this obviously is the work of a higher intelligence. For starters, Lumina is the only minivan in the universe to offer a power sliding door.* The same keyless entry system that opens and closes that door for you also unlocks the front doors and tailgate to make re-entry into space easier.

Available Remote Power Door

And to protect you from dings from manic meteorites and grocery carts, Lumina also gives you composite outer-body panels. As for advanced technology, its available traction control system is so intelligent, it monitors your wheels and automatically reacts to give you improved traction on changing road surfaces. Lumina. It looks different because it is different. So come take a look at one. It's amazing how one sighting can transform you into a believer.
